

RE-CAPTURE OF PARRY

After Exciting Chase Convict Is Taken Near Buena Vista—Tries to Kill Self Before Cap-tor Arrives

Salt Lake, Aug. 6.—George W. Parry, degenerate and moral pervert, who escaped from the Utah state prison early Saturday morning, was captured about one mile and a half south of the Buena Vista railroad station yesterday afternoon after he had attempted to commit suicide by cutting his wrists and throat rather than submit to arrest. The capture was made by Deputy Sheriff C. L. Schettler. This deputy also captured Parry March 21, 1911, after he had made a criminal assault on Lydia Almstead, for which crime Parry was serving a sentence of sixty-one years at the time of his escape.

Schettler was assisted in the capture of Parry by Deputy Sheriffs Joseph Burbidge, R. L. Eddington, M. W. Earl and David Guest. Deputy Warden A. C. Ure and a number of guards from the state prison arrived on the scene a few minutes after the capture and took Parry to the penitentiary, where he is now confined in the new cellhouse. His wounds are not serious and he will recover.

The first word that Parry was in the Buena Vista district was received at the county jail yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock by Deputy Sheriff Joseph Burbidge, who was called on the telephone by Mrs. F. W. Schoenfeld, living about two blocks below the Buena Vista station, who reported that a man answering Parry's description had accosted two little girls named Baird. The girls became frightened, ran to their home and told their mother of their experience. Mrs. Baird thought nothing of the incident at the time, but later it dawned on her that it was Parry who had accosted her daughters.

She then reported the matter to Mrs. Schoenfeld, who called the sheriff.

Accosted Girls Near Home.

Mrs. G. W. Baird, mother of the girls, said that shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning she sent her daughters, Lucinda and Della, aged 10 and 9 respectively, to a neighbor's home for some milk. Returning they were about 200 yards from their home when Parry came up to them and said that he had some pretty pictures to the girls, and then told them that he was hungry and asked them for some milk which they had. He then told the girls that he was to help them some horses, and offered them 50 cents apiece if the girls would accompany him to a nearby field to arch for them. The little girls, while his urging and coaxing, ran to their mother. Parry then went to a clump of trees nearby, and remained there for more than an hour.

About an hour later, Mrs. Baird called her neighbor, Mrs. Schoenfeld, and took her daughters with her. There she told of the experience which her daughters had had. The girls were shown a copy of The Herald-Republican of Sunday morning, which contained a picture of Parry, and they identified the picture as that of the man who had accosted them. The report then was made to the county officials and a posse sent in search.

The first of the sheriff's posse, composed of Deputies Guest and Earl, arrived in Buena Vista shortly before 11 o'clock, followed by three guards from the state prison. These men searched the surrounding country until shortly before 3 o'clock, and then returned to the city for lunch. In the meantime, every available city and county peace officer was summoned, but most of them arrived too late.

Schettler Finds Parry.

Schettler arrived on a motorcycle in the meantime and, shortly after the first party had left the district, located Parry standing under a clump of trees about one mile south of the Baird home. Parry saw Schettler and started to walk across an open field. After he had advanced a short distance, Parry broke and ran. Schettler opened fire on him with a rifle. He was at this time about 200 yards ahead of Schettler, who was mounted on a motorcycle.

Parry crossed a canal, which was a barrier to Schettler and his motor, and the deputy was forced to make a wide detour. For a few minutes he lost sight of his man. Seeing him again, Schettler fired two more shots at him, but none were effective. In the meantime Deputies Burbidge, Eddington, Earl and Guest, who had just returned, were closing in on Parry from the rear and Deputy Warden Ure, just summoned, and two guards from the front.

Parry, realizing that he was cornered, called to Schettler, "By God, I'll never take me. I'll cut my throat first." As he finished the sentence, he slashed his throat and wrists and fell to the ground just as Deputy Sheriff Schettler came up to him.

WANT PRICES QUOTED ON GRANITE SUPPLY

Salt Lake, Aug. 6.—The fame of Utah granite is spreading far and wide, and judging from the negotiations that have been started by prominent San Francisco interests the granite in Little Cottonwood canyon affords the basis for a new and extremely important industry for Salt Lake City. It is learned that during the past few days the Utah Consolidated Stone company has been requested by San Francisco architects to bid on the contract of furnishing 1,000,000 cubic feet of granite for a new auditorium and 160,000 cubic feet for a new city hall.

Should these contracts be consummated by the local company, it will call for the delivery of approximately 25,000 tons of granite, as much as more than will be required for the Utah state capitol building.

Those knowing the quality of the Little Cottonwood granite are confident that its quarrying is certain to be an important industry that will employ many hundreds of men steadily. It is stated that there is more than enough granite available up the canyon to build two cities like San Francisco. The new railroad line extends directly to the quarries and the company within a short time should be in a position to fill any tonnage order that is demanded.

SHEEP QUARANTINE PRACTICALLY LIFTED.

The quarantine that has prevented the interstate shipment of sheep from Utah and Nevada has been lifted, except from Carbon, Emery and Grand counties in Utah, according to official notice that reached the Salt Lake City office of the United States bureau of animal industry yesterday. Shipments over the Denver & Rio Grande, originating between Colton and West Water, will still have to have a federal certificate to move into another state.

Indifference on the part of those most concerned in cleaning up the three counties in Utah named is said to be the cause of the quarantine there. There is an improvement since last spring, however, and federal officials announced yesterday that it was expected the whole state would be released.

The work of cleaning up the sheep scabies in Utah has been going on for about fifteen years, but it is only lately that the federal workers have been backed in a way that enabled them to enforce their orders for cleanliness.

LOSES SAVINGS; TRIES SUICIDE

many a year ago, with a promise that as soon as he earned enough money in the United States he would return for her, went to work in Milwaukee saved $1,000 and arrived in New York to take passage on the Kron Princessin Cecilie. On the way to the ship Kubak visited a saloon yesterday and somebody substituted a wallet containing paper for the one in which he carried his savings. He discovered his loss just as the ship sailed, took poison and jumped overboard. He was rescued, but may die.
